

Dear Sir/Ma'am,

I would like to request for strengthening of the no call list instead of its weakening. As a consumer, I am a mature adult who makes my consumption choices. When I need something, I will look specifically for it. It is tiring enough to search between the choices offered, let alone being distracted by telemarketers who offer items or packages which are totally unneeded. The city life is stressful enough and we certainly would like to enjoy our private space as a place to rest.

Indeed, when we subscribed to the phone service, we merely subscribe to make our calls and receive our personal calls. We, by no means, subscribe for the telemarketing. Please be considerate to all and do unto others as you will like others to do unto you. Thank you.
